

MORMON COLONISTS TO CAUSE TROUBLE

ARE ARMED AND WILL FIGHT TO PROTECT THEIR PROPERTY THEY ASSERT.

WILL RESIST REBELS

Attempts to Secure Provisions From Their Ranches—Oroco Orders They Be Left Alone.

Angua Prieta, Sonora, July 9.—The determination of Mormon colonists at Colonia Morelos, and Colonia Oaxala, south of here to resist the demand of the rebel bands coupled with the Mormons appeal to Washington presented a menacing situation today.

Most of the Mormons are American citizens. They have armed themselves and they declare they will fight to protect their property against rebel devastation.

A few of the Mormons are naturalized Mexicans and the fear has been expressed that this circumstance may force the rebels to assume they were justified in attacking the colonists if they resisted demands for supplies.

General Sanguines commander of the government forces in this section today was at Cienegas 20 miles northwest of Colonia Morelos but was said to be unprepared to attack the rebels as his troops, mostly recruits, have not been mobilized for action.

No Molestation. Juarez, July 9.—Colonel Pasqual Oroco, Sr., in command of the garrison here was in frequent communication regarding the Mormon situation early today with his son, General Pasqual Oroco Jr., who was at Encinillas, 184 miles south of here. Gen. Oroco is reported to have ordered a continuance of his policy in the early days of the revolution, that the foreigners should not be molested.

It was stated on good authority that General Oroco would leave Encinillas during the day arriving in Juarez late in the afternoon for a conference with his father and Felipe Gutierrez rebel governor of the state of Chihuahua.

A serious phase of the situation, however, is the lack of the communication between Casas Grandes and the insurgents bands now threatening Colonia Morelos and Colonia Oaxala.

It is feared that with the rebels near Colonia Morelos trouble might be precipitated before orders from the rebel chief could be delivered.

VALUE TO PUBLIC OF HIGH SCHOOLS

Walter R. Siders of Idaho Discusses Utilitarian Side of High School At The N. E. A. Convention.

Chicago, July 9.—What the public receives from its investment in high schools and methods for bringing the high and lower schools into close union were discussed at the morning session of the N. E. A. convention here.

Walter R. Siders, superintendent of schools at Pocatello, Idaho, pointing out that 1,400,000 pupils would enter the high schools declared that new ideas in teaching would prevail. "Here before the basic idea in all our schools was that pupils being all alike should be subject to the same teaching without allowances for difference in individual attitude," said Mr. Siders. "This association rapidly is discovering the necessity of a new principle and this principle demands that pupils shall be taught with special reference to their fitness."

Other speakers were D. Call, Hartford, Conn.; Adelaide Steele, Baylor, Indianapolis; Milton C. Potter, St. Paul; Kate Upson Clark, Brooklyn; and William Hughes Mearns, Philadelphia.

MONSTER PLAN WAS BUT FLASH IN PAN

Progressives Afraid of Their Jobs Talked of Asking Taft and Roosevelt to Withdraw.

Washington, July 9.—Publicity given to the plans of progressive republican members of the house to circulate petitions calling upon President Taft to withdraw as head of the republican national ticket had the effect today of retarding development if not actually circumventing the scheme.

Further inquiry today developed the fact that what was proclaimed yesterday as a general nation wide movement to circulate petitions amongst voters had thus far been confined almost entirely to a number of well known progressives of the house.

CONTINUES DEFENSE OF LORIMER TODAY

Senator Fletcher of Florida Continues Speech In Favor of Allowing Lorimer to Retain Seat.

Washington, July 9.—Continuing his speech in support of Senator Lorimer's right to his seat, Senator Fletcher, of Florida today declared the opposition to the Illinois senator was "due to a certain newspaper."

"It is a newspaper war," he said, "let the people rule; we are the people," say the papers. "We are given to understand there is a terrible situation, what is the evidence of it? They say Lorimer was elected by the aid of democrats. Are there not other republican senators similarly elected, and are there not democratic senators who have been elected by the aid of republicans?"

"Are we to reject all such senators?" He traced Lorimer's partisan election to the Illinois constitution. He contended that there was no evidence whatever that predatory wealth had been a factor either in Lorimer's election or in his retention of his seat. "He is making his own fight unaided and in fair and honorable way and there is no evidence to the contrary," said Mr. Fletcher.

When Mr. Fletcher had concluded Senator Dillingham resumed and contended there absolutely was no evidence that state representative Beckmeyer had received money for voting for Lorimer. "Indeed," he declared, "no man ever has confessed to bribery in the case except Charles A. White, and he confessed it for $3500."

ADMITS STATEMENTS MADE WERE FALSE?

State's Attorney Wayman Says Woman in Funk-Hemming Case Admits Allegations Are Untrue.

Chicago, July 9.—State's Attorney Wayman today entered actively in the Funk-Hemming case with the statement that Mrs. Hemming had admitted that the allegations made against Clarence S. Funk, general manager of the International Harvester company in the suit for damages for alleged alienation of her affections were false.

"Mrs. Hemming is in Chicago," said State's Attorney Wayman. "She has confessed that the allegations against Mr. Funk were false and that she never knew Mr. Funk." It was believed that Mrs. Hemming was in the criminal court building ready to go before the grand jury to testify she had been a party to the suit against Mr. Funk by persons with ulterior motives.

A detailed statement throwing the burden of the separation of the couple against Mr. Funk on Hemming's attorney was published today. The suit was filed last October seeking $25,000 damages against Mr. Funk, charging him specifically with associating with Mrs. John C. Hemming on several occasions.

At the trial a verdict of not guilty was quickly returned by the jury and perjury warrants were soon afterward obtained by Hemming and Alleen Harper, a young woman who testified to seeing Mr. Funk and Mrs. Hemming in a hotel. Her testimony was flatly contradicted by persons in whose company she was at the time. Action by the grand jury is expected today.

The attorney in the case, Daniel Donahoe, could not be reached early today by interviewers who sought to question him regarding a published story of Mrs. Jos. Hemming. Mrs. Hemming's reported statement was that she had been supplied with funds by Attorney Donahoe while the suit was pending and that she has never seen Funk. Efforts to locate Mr. Donahoe at his office in the morning were fruitless.

Beder was on the military grounds of Monnelon-le-Grand near here. He had come in his airplane from Villacoublay near Paris to participate in the maneuvers and arrived above the camp after a fine flight. He was about to descend when his monoplane struck a telegraph wire which evidently the haze prevented him from seeing. His machine capsize and fell to the ground. The motor of his airship fell on his body and crushed him to death.

HAS FIRST ELECTION FOR COMMISSIONERS

Atlantic City Citizens Keyed to a High Pitch of Excitement—Leader of Old Ring Candidate.

Atlantic City, N. J., July 9.—This most famous of the world's seaside resorts has experienced many sensations in its time, but it is safe to say that nothing has ever aroused its inhabitants to such a high pitch of excitement as today's municipal election—the first to be held here under the commission plan of government.

The commission plan was adopted a month ago following the exposure of alleged political corruption and graft in municipal affairs that would have put to shame the political ringsters in some of the largest cities of the country. The exposure was brought about largely by Detective William J. Burns and his detachment. When all the evidence of alleged graft had been made public the better element among the citizens decided they had enough of the old order of things and turned to the commission plan as the best remedy in sight.

On June 11 a primary was held for nomination of 32 candidates for members of the Board of Commissioners, and today's election was held for the selection of five of the ten. These five will comprise the board.

When the results of the primary were tabulated the public was somewhat jarred to find that Mayor Harry Bacharach, under whose administration the grafters are alleged to have flourished, received the highest vote and was entitled to first place on the list of candidates for commissioners.

Also among the successful ones were Dr. Jesse B. Thompson, millionaire banker and hotel man and leader in the fusion movement a year ago to oust of "machine" from office, and Dr. P. L. Hawkins, a negro physician.

A peculiar feature of the situation was the fact that in today's election the old "machine" which put Mayor Bacharach in office last fall worked strenuously to prevent his election as a commissioner. The reason for this is to be found in the practical certainty of Dr. Thompson's election to the board and who, with Mayor Bacharach and others running with them on the ticket, are pledged to sweep the city hall clean of all the present officeholders. The new commissioners will take office on July 16, when the present system of government will cease to exist.

BELL TELEPHONE TO ABSORB NEW LINES

Wisconsin Telephone To Take Possession of Fox River Valley Telephone & Telegraph Co. July 15.

Appleton, Wis., July 9.—Upon the payment of $135,000 in cash and $215,000 in first mortgage notes, the Wisconsin Telephone Co. will take possession of the entire system of the Fox River Valley Telephone and Telegraph Company, the largest system in Wisconsin, on July 15.

The Fox River company was organized ten years ago by the late John Vanover, a millionaire paper manufacturer, and was formerly a local company in Appleton. Later capitalists in Chicago became interested with him and they consolidated with the independent company at Green Bay and a toll line between the two cities was constructed. Since then the company has installed an exchange at Depere, Wrighton, Kaukauna, Little Chute, Hortonville, New London, Waukegan, and Waukegan, and has similar connections with rural telephone lines in the Fox River Valley.

TO MAKE IMPROVEMENTS IN IRON MOUNTAIN ROAD.

St. Louis, Mo., July 9.—Extensive improvements in the Iron Mountain system are foreshadowed by the action of the stockholders at their special meeting today in ratifying the proposal of the directors to mortgage the St. Louis-Iron Mountain and Southern road to secure an issue of $200,000,000 of refunding bonds. Of the proceeds of the issue about one-half is to be used in caring for the outstanding indebtedness of the system, and a large part of the remainder will be employed in improvements in extensions. A part of the improvement fund, it is said, will go toward doublingtracking the line from Texarkana to St. Louis, a distance of nearly 500 miles.

WE PEOPLE OF AMERICA TRAVEL MORE, SEE MORE AND HAVE MORE PLEASURES THAN ANY OTHER PEOPLE IN THE WORLD.

By J. R. HAMILTON Former Advertising Manager Wanamaker's, Philadelphia.

We travel more in a year than the European does in a decade. We see more at twenty than he sees at seventy; we get more pleasure in each week-end than he enjoys in a year.

Part of this, of course, is due to the greater facilities for travel which America enjoys, but a larger part even is due to the wonderful advertising system which all railroads and all places of amusement have installed.

Some wit recently remarked that the center of a railroad's activity is no longer in the office of its President but in the sanctum of its Advertising Manager.

These publicity plans are as wide and as ramifying as the network of rails that inspires them. This paper, for example, right now in the summer season will carry the advertising of every accessible resort and of every road that reaches it. These advertisements will not only give you the costs of travel, but they will be so thoroughly descriptive of all scenic effects and pleasure opportunities that even if you never go there, you will have a vivid picture in your mind.

If you answer these ads you will receive literature that will be fairly overwhelming both as to magnitude and conviction. You will find often that the booklets have been written by famous men. (You couldn't buy better literature). You will get copies of paintings by famous artists; you will get photographs that picture to you all of the charming effects you hope to see.

This wonderful system of publicity has been the means of making all America familiar to Americans. Indeed it has even made Europe more familiar to Americans than to Europeans themselves.

And best of all, it has created this great desire to travel, to see and to enjoy. It has made of America a Nation of Cosmopolites. It has taught every family to enjoy itself. It has placed a dozen states and a thousand cities on the map.

It has taught us all how to get more pleasure out of life. Every amusement park and every place where pleasure can be had has caught the spirit of this great publicity plan.

And now we turn as eagerly to the advertising pages of this paper for our pleasure as for our profit. For we have found out that our pleasure usually brings a very great profit in health and happiness.

Advertising and Savings Accounts

By W. C. Kenaga.
Advertising has probably done more to foster the habit of systematic savings than any other factor.
Banks through newspaper advertising have induced thousands of people to open savings accounts and to systematically add thereto.
The savings habit once formed leads to the reading of advertising along other lines, for your savings bank depositor is permitted to discover ways which will permit him or her to increase the bank balance.
There are those who actually deposit each month the difference between what they expected to pay for articles and the amount they bought them for when advertised at special prices.
Then there are those who, with a given sum as working capital, keep close watch of the advertisements appearing on the "Want"
page and by judicious investment turn this capital again and again—crediting the profits to their savings accounts.
More hoarding of money isn't the object of savings. One should save to know the value of money—to have the money ready when opportunity offers a reward to the pre-son with ready cash.
More reading of advertising to save a penny here and a dime there on the cost of an article is not getting the true value of the advertisements. One should read advertising for the liberal education it affords, for the better ways of living it makes possible, as well as for the time-sav-

DROWNED IN RIVER RESULT OF MIS-STEP LATE LAST EVENING

Miss Sophia Hersbruner Of Darlington Claimed By Waters Late Last Evening—Body Recovered.

Through a mis-step in the darkness about 10:45 o'clock last evening, Miss Sophia Hersbruner, aged 19, of Darlington, fell into the Rock River near the elevator at the east end of the lower railway bridge and was drowned in spite of the frantic attempts of her companions to rescue her. The body was recovered about three quarters of an hour later.
Miss Hersbruner, who was employed at the Grand Hotel, accompanied by John Ploigert, W. R. Krieger, and Agnes Wilson were returning at the time of the accident from strolling up the river. Miss Hersbruner proposed taking a short-cut across the railway bridge and started in that direction although some of the party expressed disapproval. They nevertheless followed her lead.
On approaching the bridge they found a flat car standing part way out on the bridge, and beyond it, separated by a short interval, a box car.
To avoid crowding past this car they stepped out upon a little step from there to the track. It was very dark and objects could not be clearly distinguished. Miss Hersbruner, unable to see that there was any space between the platform and the bridge, started toward it and stepped off into the water. She screamed for help as she went down and did not reappear.

The companion of Miss Hersbruner, John Ploigert, at once plunged into the water and made frantic efforts to secure a hold on the drowning girl but without success. The water in the crib was deep, it was walled in, and the darkness was dense.
Ploigert dived and swam until exhausted, falling in a faint as soon as he reached the bank.
Patrolman Sim Doran was the first officer to be notified of the drowning and at once communicated the information to Acting Chief John Brown. He at once went to the Grand Hotel to get her friend, Miss Agnes Wilson who had rushed there in a hysterical condition immediately following the accident, as she wished to have her point out where Miss Hersbruner fell in. Patrolman Morrison also assisted and the body was recovered from the crib with the first trial of the grappling hook.
Some in the crowd which had gathered thought there was hope of resus-citating the girl as there was still warmth in her body, but their attempts were fruitless and soon afterward it was removed to the Nelson undertaking rooms.

After unsuccessful attempts to telephone to Darlington and notify the parents of Miss Hersbruner, her death Officer Brown was able to reach her aunt at Footville on the wire and have her promise to notify the parents.
The parents of Miss Hersbruner arrived here from Darlington at 10:30 o'clock this morning and will return with her body this evening on the St. Paul train leaving at 7 o'clock.
Miss Hersbruner had worked at the Grand Hotel for five or six weeks, coming here from Brodhead, where she had previously been employed. In the short time she was in Janesville she won many friends who are deeply grieved over her death.

Department Called Out Yesterday
Afternoon to Extinguish Blaze Near Garfield School.

The fire department was called at four o'clock yesterday afternoon to put out a fire that some children had started between two buildings on South Jackson street across from the Garfield school. Although the department responded quickly the fire had been extinguished when they got there. No damage was done.

NEW ENGINES BEING BUILT FOR RAILWAY

Over Two Hundred New Locomotives Have Been Ordered By St.
Paul Railroad Within Six Months.

That the St. Paul railroad officials take the view that business in the near future will be rushing is indicated by the fact that it has placed additional orders for the construction of locomotives, making a total of more than two hundred ordered within the past six months. The locomotives ordered are of the most powerful and modern types in service on any road, and represent an investment of nearly four million dollars.

A large proportion of them are built at the road's own shops at Milwaukee. The engines are equipped with superheaters, a device that has recently been introduced into railway locomotives, whereby the steam in its course from the boiler to the cylinders passes through a band of pipes in a heated chamber of the engine, thus enabling it to do more effective work.

The St. Paul is the pioneer in the matter of keeping fuel efficiency records of its locomotives. In order to accomplish this figures are compiled which show the number of tons multiplied by the miles hauled, or ton-miles as technically called, for every freight train on the system. This figure is divided into the number of pounds of coal consumed in handling the train and a unit thus obtained by which the service of one engine can be compared with another.

A personal element also enters into this campaign, for not only will one class of engine perform more efficiently than another, but much depends upon the way an engine is handled by the engineer. The company, therefore, keeps a separate record for each engine crew.
A railway's locomotive fuel is more than 10 per cent of its gross operating revenue.

CRUSHED UNDER CARS IN ST. PAUL YARDS

Don Godfrey, Switchman, Dies at Hospital Soon After Accident—Fell Between Cars.

Crushed under the wheels of a freight train, as he fell between two cars, Don Godfrey, switchman, was so severely injured in the St. Paul yards about nine o'clock last night that he died thirty minutes after he had been removed to the hospital. Godfrey, as near as can be ascertained, was riding on a gondola coal car and was attempting to set the brake when he lost his hold and fell between them.
His cries for help were heard by George Flood, another switchman, who immediately signaled for Engineer Weber to stop the train, but before this could be done one car and the front trucks of the second had passed over him. Only the fact that he did not fall across the tracks saved him from being ground up under the wheels.

As soon as the train was brought to a stop the trainmen and other yard employees, excited him from underneath, placed him in a box car and made a hurried trip to the station where an ambulance awaited.
Godfrey was then taken to Mercy hospital but lived for but half an hour after his arrival. His remains were then removed to the Ryan undertaking parlors.
Mr. Godfrey was twenty-five years old and leaves a wife and one child, a son. He resided at 209 Palm street and funeral services will be held there at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

SPELLING BEES NOW THE RAGE

Great Dictionary Distribution Has

"Trans-mag-ni-fi-can-ban-u-a-li-ly—
Of all the words I ever heard that one is a puzzle to me.

I know you can spell e-a-t,
And other simple little words like that; But spell—
Trans-mag-ni-fi-can-ban-u-a-li-ly."

Probably that word isn't in the New Websterian 1912 Dictionary, but the song shows that spelling is a popular pastime for all.

The wonderful dictionary distribution which is being conducted through The Gazette has resulted in reviving the jolly and instructive old "spelling bee." The compact, neatly bound, largely typed and yet comprehensive lexicon now obtainable at a nominal cost by everybody is just the ideal book on which to base a spelling bee.

The dictionaries not only continue in popular favor, but the demand for them at The Gazette office is steadily increasing.

The dictionary idea has made a tremendous hit. To be able to obtain a limp leather bound dictionary complete in word definition and including many valuable, up-to-date charts of statistics, with supplementary articles on grammar and diction, is truly an opportunity never before offered to the public.

Bob Moha, the chunky middle-weight of Milwaukee, has come to the conclusion that under certain conditions fishing may be rather expensive fun. Not long ago Moha went out on a fishing expedition and failed to tell his manager or any one else where he could be found.

He hadn't been gone long before an offer came from London to leave at about ready to give up. It is also said that the owners of the Akron team are ready to surrender their franchise. Owner Annis, of the Grand Rapids club, wants to lengthen the season.

The promoters of the McGorty-Moha boxing contest, scheduled for July 4, at Port Washington, Wis., have announced that the match has been declared off on account of the failure of Moha to post his forfeit.

Manager Harry Wolverton of the New York Americans is trying to get rid of a few of the dead ones on his team. Vaughn and Shears, pitchers; Williams, catcher; Daniels, outfielder; and Earl Gardner, infielder, it is said, must soon walk the plank.

A New York expert has figured it out that Speaker, Hooper, Lewis, Wood and Hall, of the Boston Red Sox, are the equal of any nine men on the average team in either league.

Ad Wolgast and Abe Attell will fight in San Francisco early in Aug. at 132 pounds ringside. Billy Nolan, manager of Attell, says he will post a side bet of $10,000.

A stake race worth $25,000 for two-year old trotters will be one of the features of the Panama-Pacific exposition in 1915. The Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders' Association has decided to open such an event for foals in 1913. This is the largest stake of the kind on record, and may mark the beginning of an invasion of the west by eastern horsemen. It is not of record that an eastern colt has ever been shipped to California to fill a stake engagement there.

once for a meeting with George Carpentier; another came from Australia, which if accepted would have made it necessary for Moha to have sailed immediately. There was good money in both matches.

But Bob's manager couldn't find him though he burned up several telegraph lines in the hunt. Next time the fighter goes away to fish he'll doubtless leave his address.

It is freely predicted that the Central League will be squeezed down soon to eight teams. Zanesville, South Bend and Wheeling have not been doing well and the owners are Duke Kahanamoku, full-blooded Hawaiian, is the only man on the American Olympic team who stands a chance to win in the swimming contest at Stockholm. Duke is one of the best swimmers that ever happened in Hawaii. The warm waters there invite the natives the whole year round, and it is possible to spend an entire day in the surf without becoming chilled. Kahanamoku has been tried out repeatedly in this country, and his remarkable speed and endurance place him far ahead of any of the other swimmers on Uncle Sam's Olympic team.

AMERICAN REFUGEES, FLEEING FROM WAR-STRICKEN MEXICO RELATE STORIES OF BARBARITIES, MURDER AND PILLAGE

American refugees on U. S. transport Buford.

San Francisco. — Tales of savage barbarism, stories of death and pillage, suffering and privation and narrow escapes from death were brought here by 365 refugees who arrived on the United States army transport Buford from the west coast of Mexico early this afternoon. Intervention is the only thing that will save the country from anarchy say those who have witnessed the conditions of the last several months, and not until the United States steps in and puts a end to the work of the brigands will it be possible for the country to advance.

The vessel came here from Salina Cruz after having picked up refugees at Topolobampo, Altata, Mazatlan.

Night and day the officers and crew, the medical corps and trained nurses, together with the 40 officers and troops of the coast artillery worked, from the time the transport cleared from San Diego May 1 last until it again touched American waters.

Mrs. Mabel A. Windham and daughter Gladys, aged seventeen years, were two of five women and seven men who fought their way through a crowd of maddened Yaquis on a ranch 100 miles from Mazatlan, escaped in leaky canoes and for several days and nights traveled down a small river through the tropical forests to reach safety. They hid in the brush in daylight, traveled cautiously by night and subsisted on raw beans and uncooked tortillas rather than run the risk of detection from fires should they attempt to cook their food. When they reached Mazatlan Mrs. Windham's husband was so ill he was left in a hospital. Senator

Bard of Ventura is one of the owners of the ranch of which Windham is manager. For two days the party, harried in a compound, fought off the murderers before an opportunity offered for them to get away.

Richard Codi, who came from Salina Cruz, told another tale of torture. It happened, says Codi, almost within sight of Salina Cruz two weeks or more ago. A German, his wife and children living on a ranch were surrounded by Mexican brigands. The German was tied to a pole, says Codi, and his wife was dragged from the house and dismembered before his gaze. Before she died her children were slaughtered, and after the powerless husband and father had witnessed these horrors he was put to death.

Life is not looked upon as having value anywhere along the west coast, according to H. T. Payne, who is chairman of the refugee committee aboard the vessel. Payne is from Mazatlan, and says that half the truth regarding conditions in Mexico has not reached this country.

NO TRUCE.

The Chicago Inter-Ocean sums up the Roosevelt situation in the following manner: "All that the Inter-Ocean says may not perhaps be the true status of the situation, but it hits the nail on the head pretty fairly. This question of the third party is just as the person looks at it. The greatest hue and cry appears to be raised by disgruntled office-seekers or persons who are afraid they will lose their little bread and butter jobs through the fight within the republican ranks. Really this nation is such a big one, the idea of the republic so firmly fixed in the minds of all, that the fear of an empire, a triumvirate, or any other form of government, is absurd. The Inter-Ocean does not look at the situation in this light, but says that no truce with Roosevelt is possible in the following editorial:

"Senator Poindexter was exhibiting around Washington, Sunday, a letter in which Mr. Roosevelt declared that the differences between the republicans and the insurgents cannot be reconciled, and that a new party is the only hope of the country.

"It is pleasing to find Mr. Roosevelt thus facing the issue as it is. "The republican party has refused to accept Theodore Roosevelt's political principles as its creed. That refusal alone would make an irreconcilable conflict. But even that does not measure the width and depth of the gulf between Theodore Roosevelt and republicanism.

"Professor Wilson has accepted the Roosevelt principles and policies. But does the fact that his whole 'Charter of Democracy,' as he calls it, has been accepted by the presidential candidate of a great party move. Mr. Roosevelt to regard his mission as accomplished and retire from the field in favor of a more fortunate leader in the cause of government by mob and despot?

"Not in the least. Mr. Roosevelt remains in the field. "There were well-meaning men in and about the republican national convention and around the country who were amiably or timidly blind to the breadth and depth of the gulf which Theodore Roosevelt had opened between himself and historic republicanism.

"These men tried to get the contest regarded as merely personal between Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Taft. They urged 'compromise' earnestly, even prayerfully and tearfully. They tried to argue that the party ought to 'rise above these personal combats.' They suggested that the party put aside both Mr. Taft and Mr. Roosevelt and 'harmonize' on some candidate 'generally acceptable.'

"These compromisers did not get far, because the real leaders, representing stalwart republicanism, knew that they were fighting for Mr. Taft because the situation had made it necessary to fight for Mr. Taft in order to save the republic from a dictator. They were resolved to save the republic first by beating back the usurper and then do what they could for the republican party.

"But the compromisers would have got farther—they might have succeeded in voting down the stalwarts and in effecting a hypocritical truce—but for Mr. Roosevelt himself. Their offer of a 'compromise' candidate on a 'progressive' platform—the theory of the Cummins movement—were curtly rejected by Mr. Roosevelt. The only compromise Mr. Roosevelt would consider was 'Nominate ME.'

"Even had the convention accepted a Roosevelt platform there would have been no truce unless it had taken Roosevelt as well. Though permitted to write the platform, Mr. Roosevelt would have bolted unless given the nomination also. The only way to avoid the Roosevelt bolt was the way of craven submission to Theodore Roosevelt—of acceptance of Theodore Roosevelt as dictator.

"Here is the outstanding fact by which the Roosevelt new party movement differs from all previous political rebellions and secessions. Its first principle, underlying and conditioning all others, is the personal exaltation of Theodore Roosevelt—the acceptance and acknowledgment of Theodore Roosevelt as the only man on earth worthy to be President of the United States."

SEE DANGER.

Ardent Wilson men throughout the democratic party in the state see great danger for their chosen candidate in the possible nomination of Judge Karel of Milwaukee as the gubernatorial candidate. They would much rather prefer to name some man who is tried and true in the doctrines of the so-called "Great Progressives." They would like to name Mr. Schmitz, who ran two years ago, or John Alward, who ran four years ago and tried to run two years ago but was defeated at the primaries. It is amusing to hear Wisconsin called a doubtful state by the political wise men. The old Badger state will roll up the usual republican majority this fall for Taft and the state ticket, but meanwhile the democrats are having the time of their life imagining they can win if they had the right man and fighting the nomination of the only man they could hope to win with—Judge Karel.

REGINA ONLY CHECKED.

Hard hit though the capital of Saskatchewan is by the tornado, which tore through half of the fine young city, there need be no question as to the fate of that town. It is filled with the spirit of the Canadian Northwest and its future is well assured.

Few parts of the earth are advancing as fast as the region tributary to Regina and nowhere is there more confidence in the continuation and expansion of present prosperity. The city itself has risen in a few years from a mere trading post to a fine, modern town of more than 30,000 inhabitants. Its bank clearings, building permits and railroad tonnage records for the last year or two compare well with like statistics in solid old cities four times its size.

The province of Saskatchewan, in the midst of which Regina stands, had only 91,000 inhabitants in 1901. By the spring of 1911 the province had risen to 492,000, gaining a large part of that increase from the United States. It is going ahead faster than ever now and so is its capital.

Such a town will recover rapidly from the disaster which has befallen it. There will be no hesitation or delay in undertaking the rebuilding of the districts laid waste by the tornado and it will not be long before Regina will be handsomer, richer and, of course, bigger than ever.

Madero refuses to make terms with Orozco, the rebel chief, and as the government does not appear to be able to crush him on schedule time the war drags on, quite like a democratic national convention.

New York has become interested in a movement to erect a monument to Dante. More New York egotism, Dante really didn't know anything about New York when he wrote "The Inferno."

The triumph of the Baltimore convention was scored by J. Ham Lewis. When he took the chairman's gavel temporarily, the band played: "Oh, You Beautiful Doll."

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT
By Roy K. Moulton

You've Got to Take a Chance.
If you go across the ocean your ship is liable to sink.
True enough, but if you travel on land your train is liable to be wrecked.

If you just jimmy around the home town your automobile is liable to blow up or throw a tire and precipitate you quickly into a ravine on your elbows and shoulder blades.

If you go buggy riding your horse is apt to shy at a piece of paper in the road and kick you into the middle of the following week.

If you go out walking an automobile is liable to scramble you up or a footpad is liable to tap you suddenly yet firmly upon the dome of thought.

But if you sit still at home a hundred things are liable to happen to you. The gas stove is likely to blow up, you may have a fit, somebody may shoot through the window by accident, the house may catch fire, some weary wayfarer may come along and sell you a lot of Turkish rugs, lightning may strike the house, and then there is always the possibility of an earthquake.

At the very best you have got to take a chance whether you want to or not.

But he became quite smitten with the city's potent charm.

His visits to the city he would hail with greatest glee.

Heart to Heart Talks.
By EDWIN A. NYE.

DO IT NOW.
I say to myself:
Tomorrow I will set myself to the task that is close at hand, the thing that needs my urgent attention. Today I am too busy or too tired or too lazy.

Tomorrow, say I, I will take time for the gracious and tender word that I forget or neglect to speak today.

Tomorrow, yes, tomorrow I will do the generous deed I thought to do today, but failed in the performance.

Tomorrow I will begin the pursuit of the things worth while—the realities of life. Tomorrow I will be a man and put away the petty emulations and the cheap struggles that come to naught. Today I am busy with my selfish concerns.

Tomorrow the speech of love shall not stick in my throat and want expression. Tomorrow surely I will be thoughtful of my fellows and courteous to all and gentle.

Tomorrow! Ah, the things I hope to do—tomorrow!

And, foolish soul of me, do I not know from long experience there is no such thing as tomorrow?

Do I not know that tomorrow, so called, is but the extension of today—that eternity itself is but an extension of this present moment?

Tomorrow? The word was invented by men like me with which to fool themselves—men who, like me, when confronted by the duty they dared not face today, hoped to push it away from them by a single word.

And so, like me, men talk of tomorrow and "resolve and re-resolve, then die the same."

Cannot I learn that resolution, however unbusinessed, will not prove with tomorrow? Do I not know that resolution, hatched up with today, is able to turn great furrows?

Say not to yourself, "There is time tomorrow." Because there is no other time than this—now! And there will be no other time.

Tomorrow will never come. Today is coming! Therefore—Whatever the urgent task, do it now! Whatever the special word you hope to say, say it—say it now. Whatever the deed you contemplate do not wait.

Do not juggle with tomorrow. It will hold the word of promise to your ear and break it to your heart.
Begin today.
Do it now.

Never Satisfied.

FRED R. JONES TOOK LIFE THIS MORNING

FIRE SHOT INTO HEART WHILE WIFE AND GUESTS WERE AT BREAKFAST.

MEETS INSTANT DEATH

Action Thought to be Result of Temporary Insanity.

While temporarily insane Fred R. Jones, owner and proprietor of the London hotel, and one of the best known businessmen of Janesville shot himself through the heart at 9:30 o'clock this morning at his home at 312 Jackson street, while his wife and nephew and niece were breakfasting in the dining room on the floor below.

Struck by the shot, Mrs. Jones rushed to the bedroom of her husband, hand, followed by the other members of the household. Mr. Jones was found lying unconscious on the floor, blood flowing from a wound in his side.

FRED R. JONES' RESIDENCE ON JACKMAN STREET WHERE HE DIED.

Dr. James Gibson was at once summoned but found no signs of life and he adjudged that death was instantaneous. Only one shot had been fired.

Mrs. Jones returned from Chicago at nine o'clock last evening accompanied by her nephew and niece, Miss Helen and W. C. Purcell of New York city whom she had gone to meet.

Following his usual custom Mr. Jones rose very early this morning and at the breakfast table appeared in his usual good spirits. He left the family seated there and went directly to his room where he took a thirty-eight calibre revolver and fired the fatal shot.

While he had been suffering from insomnia for some weeks he was apparently in his usual good spirits when he left the hotel London last night and even his most intimate friends are at a loss to explain his sudden mental derangement which caused him to take his life.

Several years ago Mr. Jones retired from active business, leasing his hotel, the London, at the corner of Milwaukee and North Bluff streets, to W. E. Lawyer, and built himself the handsome residence on Jackson street where he died today. Mr. Lawyer's lease expired the first of the present month and Mr. Jones decided to again enter active work and took over the active management of the hotel again.

A year ago he built a large addition to the hotel property, which caused considerable litigation owing to the presence of a right-of-way which had not been eased by former owners. It was recently decided in Mr. Jones' favor, however.

Mr. Jones built his present residence on Jackson street and has improved the property about his home until it was one of the handsomest in that section of the city. He was much interested in beautifying his grounds and was in the habit of rising early in the morning and walking about his grounds which was a great love of animals and always had a fine dog and a good horse.

He was a favorite with the children of the neighborhood, of whom he was very fond, and they will miss him, as will others who came to know him intimately. He was fond of travel and had visited the principal points of interest in the east, south and west.

Three years ago, while on a visit in Los Angeles, California, Mr. Jones suffered severe injuries to his head in a street car accident. He was unconscious for some time and he was not able to return home all summer. Physicians then advised him to stop active business and live as leisurely as possible. He never completely recovered from this accident, and it is thought that the disorders incident to it are in part responsible for his unfortunate action.

Fred R. Jones was born in London, England, in 1854, coming to Janesville with his parents when but an infant. He received a good education and although starting in business with little more than a clear head and strong arms was able to make rapid progress and gain a competence.

He built the London hotel and was its proprietor, disposing of the hotel business several years ago, when he went to California for an extended sojourn.

He had a large business acquaintance among whom he was highly esteemed and respected, and numerous personal friends.

Surviving him are his wife and two sisters and four brothers: Mrs. Ellen Tellew of Downs, Kansas; Mrs. Charlotte Harris of this city; and Messrs. A. N. P. N. C. F. and J. J. Jones, all living in Janesville. Funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

Horse Runs Away: Frightened when a piece of the harness broke one of the delivery horses of Carle's grocery took a mad dash down East Milwaukee street this afternoon. The horse was finally stopped at the corner of East Milwaukee and Bluff street. The driver did not receive any injuries but the wagon was damaged considerably.

ELGIN BUTTER IS FIRM AT TWENTY-FIVE CENTS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Elgin, Ill., July 8.—Elgin butter is firm today at twenty-five cents.

A Chinese Puzzle.

Some days ago we published a conundrum from the Chinese, taken from a Paris contemporary, but as we have not received the correct answer we give it, together with the original question. The question ran: "Young I am green, old I am yellow; well beaten I become compliant; if I accompany a friend for long, he urges me to leave him; young I am honored, old I am despised." The answer is "Straw slippers."—London Globe.

Not a Permanent Arrangement.

In London the saloons are open on Sundays between the hours of three and five in the afternoon. A couple of roughs were standing in front of one of these accommodations waiting for it to open when a Salvation Army captain who was passing said, "Men, don't you know that when you enter a saloon you enter hell?" "That's all right, old top," piped one of the roughs, "he'll throw us out in a couple of hours."

WHITE AND GOLD GOWN WITH COLLAR OF DIAMONDS WINS RICH BARON'S HEART.

Mrs. Wylie Reynolds.

A white and gold gown, with a collar and tiara of diamonds and sapphires, won for the beautiful Mrs. Wylie Reynolds of Jackson, Mich., an Italian nobleman with the blood of Bourbon kings in his veins, and Paris dressmakers and modistes are busy upon one of the most elaborate trousseaus which has left that city since Princess Marie Bonaparte married Prince George of Greece, in 1907. Mrs. Reynolds is the widow of a millionaire banker, and her husband-to-be is Eusebio di Francisca, a Neapolitan noble.

TWO SERIOUSLY HURT SCAFFOLD COLLAPSES

Contractor Lars Frederickson and Peter Hanson, Workman, Suffer Sixteen-Foot Fall.

Lars Frederickson, the contractor, and a workman, Peter Hanson, were injured shortly before four o'clock when the scaffold on which they were working at the Baines warehouse collapsed and they fell sixteen feet to the ground, striking on the stone curbing. Hanson struck on his head, was picked up unconscious, and later taken to the hospital. His injuries are considered serious. Frederickson was also taken to the hospital.

Lifelong Eccentric Dresser.

An old man who recently passed away in Whittinsville, Wash., during all the 83 years of his life had never worn stockings—because he hated the feeling of them; nor had he worn anything but a straw hat, summer and winter alike, to keep, as he expressed it, rain and snow from going down his neck.

Doubtful About the Joke.

My daughter had tried to inculcate courage in her two-year-old boy by telling him when any accident befell him that "It was only a joke." One night a tornado struck the neighborhood, and while trees were crashing around them and they expected momentarily to be carried away he crept up to his mother and, pulling her dress, said, "Mamma, is this just a joke?"—Exchange.

BABY NEEDS WATCHING IN SUMMER TIME

Their Little Stomachs Get Out of Order Easily in Hot Weather.

Mothers should watch closely the condition of the children's bowels, babies especially. Keep the bowels regular and much of the illness to which children are most susceptible in summer can be prevented.

The most prevalent symptoms are constipation and diarrhoea. When these from the stomach congests in the bowels and makes your little one feverish and fretful, with a feeling of heaviness or languor, try giving it a spoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at bedtime. By morning this pleasant, mild laxative will act gently, yet positively, and restore normal conditions. This simple, natural remedy is also invaluable in checking summer diarrhoea. By thoroughly cleansing the bowels, the foreign matter and poisons that irritate and inflame the tissues are eliminated. Don't torture the child with harsh cathartic, purgative or astringent remedies, that upset the whole system, and at best only relieve temporarily. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, while positive in its effect, acts gently and without griping or discomfort, restoring normal conditions.

In using Syrup Pepsin for children the mother can feel perfectly safe, as it contains no opiates, or narcotic drug, being a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin. By carrying off this dislodged tissue of the mucous membrane that inflame the nasal passages it will quickly break the "summer cold" that is so annoying. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is sold by druggists for fifty cents a bottle—the larger family size, one dollar. A free trial bottle, postpaid, can be obtained by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 406 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois.

Such Beautiful Words.

Dorothy was only five years old, but she had already begun to make plans for the future. She unfolded one of them to her mother one day. "When I grow up I'm going to have two children," she said; "I'm going to name the first one Anemia and the second one Malaria!"—Harper's Bazar.

True Nobleness.

To love the unlovely, to sympathize with the contrary-minded, to give to the uncharitable, to forgive such as never pity, to be just to men who make iniquity a law, to repay their ceaseless hate with never-ceasing love, is one of the noblest attainments of man, and in this he becomes most divine.—Theodore Parker.

SUFFRAGISTS START ON COUNTY TOURS

Political Equality League Begin Spirited Campaign Through the Country.

Last night the members of the Political Equality League of Rock County, with Miss Harriet Grimm of Chicago as speaker, made their first trip on the seasons campaign in the interests of Women's vote through the country.

Miss Grimm is a brilliant speaker, holding her audience easily, with not only her wit and humor, but her experience and knowledge of legislative affairs, child labor laws and industrial conditions of the women of this country. Nor does she stop there, but gives a history of the progress of the Equal Suffrage progress abroad.

The first stop last night was at Alton, where the automobile with its broad yellow banner encircling the back and sides of the car, soon attracted groups from the street. Interested women and men who were evidently anticipating the party were in front of the post office where the lecture was given, Miss Grimm standing in the car while the other ladies distributed literature.

Miss Grimm said in part: "Just what are the prejudices against Women's Suffrage? Very similar, says Miss Grimm, to the prejudice a hundred years ago against woman having an education—fear that women will not continue her household interests. Men are awfully afraid she will forget how to cook. Yet college education has produced better housekeepers and cooks. The time was when there was just one cook book in the country, and that one edited by Harriet Beecher Stowe. Miss Grimm dared and woman of today to use any of the recipes found there, and risk the divorce courts, or death of the unfortunate victims eating the dishes concocted from it. Now we have a Bantling cook book, a Congressional cook book, Episcopal cook book, Catholic cook book, and now there is the Woman's Suffrage cook book with recipes for devils' food cake, heavenly hash and angels' food cake on one side of the page and a lecture of Judge Lindsay on what her vote has done for Colorado on the other.

"Women's study of economics, together with her experience in spreading twenty-five cents over a dollar's worth has made her wise in expenditure, and when the women of Illinois got to thinking about the $163,000 appropriation spent on the care of the state house alone, they got busy investigating where the money went to. What did they find?

"On the pay roll were 154 janitors for the care of 50 rooms, occupied by 254 legislators. My! They must have been a dirty bunch!

"Then, there were 59 policemen to look after these members who were regarded in such high esteem as to be placed in this office of trust.

"But what do you think of this? Fifteen men were paid $3.00 a day to wind the clocks!"

Miss Grimm had a little spare time one day to look around and count those clocks. There were ten of them, and every one of them eight-day clocks. Yet when these women wanted an appropriation for several state institutions sadly needed there was not enough money.

This is but one instance of the many to be cited as to the places women may be trusted to assist with their judgment together with their vote. They found that any proposition for better laws and betterment of conditions generally, was just so much waste of breath without their vote.

Later the party went to Beloit where Miss Grimm's lecture was applauded by an enthusiastic crowd of fully five hundred people. The men outnumbered the women, and were evidently impressed with her logic, and laughed heartily at her jokes on themselves.

The members of the league are dividing the time and work. Last night the ladies with Miss Grimm were: Miss E. M. Clark, Miss Louise Merrill and Mrs. J. L. Woolson.

THEATERS

The Outlook of April 12 contains an article entitled "Recent Musical Happenings in New York," which includes the following high estimate of music of the West and of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, which will appear here Thursday evening July 18 at Myers Theatre.

Progress in music, however, does not rest solely in the hands of those who are composing. In no respect has music in America shown a greater advance than in orchestral concerts. Today Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia, New York, Minneapolis and Cincinnati each has its own orchestra or orchestras. Time was when such music as the modern orchestras give could in the West be heard only as it was given by an orchestra from the East. Now the Eastern cities have to look to their laurels.

For example, there are few orchestras in the world that can be ranked with the Minneapolis orchestra. An orchestra such as this is like an individual—it has a soul and body. Its soul is its musical qualities, its body is its financial support. Mr. Emil Oberholzer the conductor of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, is the creator of its soul, while a group of public-spirited men and women of Minneapolis is the creator of its body. Minneapolis has a reason to be proud of its orchestra. It belongs in the same class with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and the Thomas orchestra of Chicago.

This is the second orchestra that has come to New York this season from cities to the westward for a New York audience, as The Outlook has already recorded, had the privilege not long ago of hearing the Thomas Orchestra play under the direction of Mr. Stock. Not the least interesting feature of the visit of the Minneapolis Orchestra was its playing of the Brahms "First Symphony." Before the end of this season this symphony will have been played at least five times in New York—by the New York Philharmonic Orchestra under Mr. Stravinsky by the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra under Mr. Oberholzer, by the Boston Symphony Orchestra under Mr. Fielder, by the New York Symphony Orchestra under Mr. Walter Damrosch and this week, by the London Symphony Orchestra under Mr. Nikisch.

Incidentally, it is worth while to mention the program book of the Minneapolis Orchestra. Even the most casual acquaintance with music would enable the reader of this book not only to appreciate the structure of the symphony as he hears it, but also to refresh his memory afterwards.

IOWA MINISTER HAS A DIFFERENT IDEA

L. V. Nash of Middletown, Iowa, Represents Theory That There is No Hell.

L. V. Nash, a minister of Middletown, Iowa, who passed through Janesville this morning enroute for Oxford, where he will spend his vacation, represents the doctrines of the International Bible Students' association that there is no Hell, with the customary brimstone accompaniment for torment of the wicked. The association is in session in Washington and passed a resolution condemning the practice of teaching of the other world of torment, yesterday. Mr. L. V. Nash offers the following communication to repudiate the theory advanced.

Editor: Apropos of the call to ministers from the I. B. S. association, let me suggest to these good souls they read their bibles and all of the holy scriptures, for the truth, and the whole truth is found when one gathers and holds all that is said in the bible upon any subject treated.

In John, 5:28, 29, our Lord says: "Marvel not at this; for the hour is coming in which ALL that are in the grave shall hear His voice, and shall come forth; they that have done good unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil unto the resurrection of damnation."

In the 15th chapter of I. Cor., we are told of the spiritual body for the saved. Manifestly the saved receive the spiritual body by being in Christ.

The lost souls are also raised up. They have no part in the redemption purchased by Christ, and consequently, they stand again in the judgment day, the same in all respects as in the life when they made the record for which they are to be judged—the same man who acted must stand for his deeds. "And they that have come evil unto the resurrection of damnation." Rev. 2:11. He that overcometh shall not be hurt of the second death. Ch. 20: 14, 15. "And death and hell were cast into the lake of fire." This is the second death. "And whosoever was not found written in the book of life was cast into the lake of fire." Also 21:8.

"But the fearful, and unbelieving, and the abominable, and murderers, and whoremongers, and sorcerers, and idolaters, and all hars, shall have their part which burneth with fire and brimstone"; which is the second death.

The resurrection unto damnation is plainly declared by our Lord. The second death is the same as the first. There is nothing shown to the contrary. The bodies of the last, after the second death are burned with fire, while their spirits return to the same state in which they waited for the judgment day.

The sinner who rejects God's mercy is born once, and dies twice. Let those who say "I will end it all by suicide," take notice; also all who are politely bowing out Jesus Christ, the Saviour, as having neither time nor need of His salvation provided by His awful suffering and death. In the

PLAN IMPROVEMENTS AT THE INSTITUTE

Twenty-one Thousand Dollars to Be Spent by State at School for Blind This Year.

Twenty-one thousand five hundred dollars will be spent by the state of Wisconsin for improvements and remodeling buildings at the State School for the Blind, located in this city. At the session of the legislature last year this amount was appropriated for that purpose, and part of the work, that of putting fire escapes on the building, was done last fall.

The board of control, at its recent meeting, also approved the plans for other changes to be made, and bids for doing the work will be opened on Friday, July 10. A new kitchen and dining room will be built, and a nursery added to the east wing of the main building. The barns will be remodeled and sanitary cow stalls will be put in. The roof of the hay barn will be raised so as to permit the use of a machine in putting the hay into the barn.

Square Foot and Foot Square. There is no difference in area between one square foot and one foot square, though there may be a difference in the shape and dimensions of the surfaces. For instance, one square foot may be enclosed by a circular line, a hexagon, a triangle, or a rectangle. One foot square is an area of fixed form, the four sides being equal and the four angles all right angles. Seven square feet and seven feet square are not equivalent, either in the dimensions of the sides or the area contained.

In these days of high cost of living, a medicine that gets a man up out of bed and able to work in a few days is a safe and valuable remedy. John Heath, Michigan Bar, Cal., says: "I had kidney and bladder trouble for nearly six years, and was confined to my bed, unable to turn without help. Soon after I commenced using Foley Kidney Pills and was relieved at once." His example is worth following. Foley Kidney Pills will do for others just as much as they have done for John Heath. ZACHARY TAYLOR.

By Howard L. Rann.

ZACHARY TAYLOR, twelfth president of the United States, died 62 years ago today after only one year in the White House. His death was mourned by everybody except Mexico, from which he had removed several square feet of territory some years previous. As a scrapper, Zach Taylor has not been excelled by any of our presidents except T. Roosevelt, who has just taken the hide of some of the most prominent bosses. He was a very compact man, being constructed somewhat on the lines of a square piano, and had a concise form of speech, biting off his consonants and throwing them at the enemy in a raw state. Soon after he entered the army General Taylor was ordered to the frontier, which was then about four miles west of Coney Island, and sent word to the Indians to keep off the grass. Chief Blackhawk reported in a long speech about squatter sovereignty, but finally had to detail so many squads of pal-bearers that he was short a quorum in his effective force, so he surrendered with a pained look. Shortly after this the United States decided to separate the state of Texas from Mexico, and see if Mexico would miss anything. History relates that Mexico missed Texas at once and that she kept on missing everything she shot at during the war. General Taylor was sent over to see that Texas did not move, and before returning, found it necessary to slaughter a large number of inoffensive and odoriferous Greasers: His chief debate took place at Buena Vista, where an old gentleman named Santa Ana fell on him heavily with 21,000 men. Taylor had only 5,000 troops, but nearly all of them could hit the pavement if they jumped off the roof and Santa Ana was dispersed to such an extent that no attempt was made to collect his fragments. After this spiking Texas to the map, General Taylor returned home and was injected into the White House in spite of his struggles. He was called "Old Rough and Ready," a nickname which fittingly typified his rugged courage and old-fashioned honesty, qualities with which his name will ever be inseparably connected.

Reason for His Belief. A noted German astronomer is of the firm belief that Mars is inhabited. He recently explained his belief by remarking that if there were 10,000, 000 houses all fitted alike in the world and one was known to be inhabited it would be a logical inference to suppose that all were.

WOMAN'S PAGE

HEART AND HOME TALKS

BY BARBARA BOYD

Why They Thought Life Not Worth Living

WITHIN an hour, two women, total strangers to each other, were heard to remark in tones of utter discouragement, "Life isn't worth living."

They were not struggling along under a load of poverty or ill-health or misfortune. Both were well-dressed, prosperous-looking business women. Yet each was utterly discouraged, and if there had been any pleasant, unblazoned way to step out of it all, they were quite in the mood to throw off this mortal coil, and seek another plane of existence.

One had sickness at home that had upset important plans; certain trusted friends had proved treacherous; her business affairs were turning out disastrously. As she told a friend her troubles, she wept at the plight she was in. The struggle didn't seem worth continuing.

The other had been deserted at a critical moment by a trusted employee; other employees just half did their work; everything was at sixes and sevens; the people higher up were asking for results; the game wasn't worth the candle, and what was the use of living anyway, when that was all you got out of it.

Thus, they talked, each voicing in different ways, the one thought. And nearly all of us at some time or other have felt the same. We get swamped under difficulties. Our lives are consumed with petty details. And such living doesn't seem worth while. And if this were all of it, it wouldn't be worth while. To a person of intelligence and feeling and capacity for joy, days filled to overflowing with petty cares and worries are not worth living, if in the end they are all. But the thing we want to do, is to see that these are not the end. We want to get our heads above our difficulties and get the broader outlook.

These two women saw nothing but their worries, their business and what it brought. They never looked above or beyond these things. They were submerged by them, or so surrounded by them, that they could not look beyond. They had a wrong outlook and because of this outlook what they saw of life, and this appeared to be the whole of life, did not seem worth living.

But if they would have climbed a little higher, got a vision that embraced the whole horizon of life, they would have seen that business and its complications, or the worries of housekeeping, were only a part of the whole. This broader outlook would have disclosed many beautiful things in the great plane of life. If their vision was keen enough, they would have been able to discover the purpose of life, and then all the various parts would have dropped into their true places, and taken on the beauty that enveloped the whole.

For when we begin to understand life and see the purpose of it, it takes on wondrous beauty. Difficulties and troubles disappear. It becomes a joyous march to better things. So, to discover how well worth living life is, we should cultivate the higher vision.

but do not cut the chops apart. Trim as for French chops and bake twenty minutes before adding water and seasoning. Reduce the heat and cook about forty minutes longer, basting frequently. Fill the center with diced buttered new carrot and June peas. Arrange braised potatoes around the roast and decorate the ends of the chops with fillettes.

Broiled chops—Rub the chops thoroughly with a clean cut lemon and sprinkle with butter. Cook quickly and serve hot.

Lamb Ball With Brussels Sprouts—While the sprouts are steaming, chop the cold, cooked lamb, add twelve mint leaves, two tablespoons of butter, a teaspoon of salt, half a teaspoon of paprika, three rolled crackers, and the yolks of two eggs. A LITTLE fire is quickly trodden out: Which, being suffered, rivers cannot quench.

FISH FOODS.

Fish as an article of food is as valuable for variety of diet to those who are well as to the invalid. Fish is especially good for those of weak digestion, as it is easily digested. There are some foods which are hard to spoil even by cooking, but fish is not one of them. Fish should be carefully cooked and daintily served to be palatable.

Quite as much depends upon the serving and garnishing of the fish dish as upon the cooking.

Another point to be remembered in serving fish is that it has no strong flavor like meats, but depends upon the seasoning and sauces for its piquant savor.

Fish is a food of which there need be little waste, for the cold fish may be made over into more palatable dishes than the fresh dish itself.

Curried Fish—Slice a large apple and two onions in a frying pan containing three tablespoons of fat and fry until a rich brown. Sprinkle into the frying pan a heaping teaspoonful of curry powder and two tablespoons of flour. Add a cup of stock or water and cook until smooth; strain and set aside to cool. Flake a pound and a half of cold boiled fish that has been freed from skin and bones. Add the sauce to the fish in a saucepan, bring to a boil and serve hot in a border of well-boiled rice.

Shad-Roe Salad—When the roe is not needed for the fish dinner, a salad can be made of it for the next day's dinner. As it spoils quickly, unless it is baked with the shad, cook it in slightly salted water for fifteen minutes at the simmering point.

Drain and wipe dry, dip in egg and crumbs and brown in a little butter. While still warm pour over it two tablespoons of lemon juice, salt and pepper and set away to chill. When ready to serve, cut in pieces and mix with an equal quantity of cucumber cubes. Cover with mayonnaise dressing, decorate with capers and chopped olives and serve on lettuce leaves.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

"IF YOU can keep your head when all about you Are losing theirs and blaming it on you; If you can trust yourself when all men doubt you, But make allowance for their doubting, too; If you can wait and not be tired by waiting; Or being lied about, don't deal on lies; Or being hated, don't give way to hating, AND YET DON'T LOOK TOO GOOD ON TALK TOO WISE."

unostentatiously set right. But when the positive man makes the mistake, it is heralded abroad and laughed over and made fun of, with great éclat.

The positive one cannot understand this. It seems most unjust to him. "I'm sure I'm usually a good deal more correct than these people who are crowding over me for this one blunder," he thinks resentfully.

Quite so, my friend, but you forget that by your "I-am-always-right" attitude you have been rubbing it into those people so long that they couldn't help being delighted at a chance to return the compliment.

For any girl—or man, either, for that matter—who desires popularity, I should recommend positiveness as a red light on the track to be sedulously avoided.

Be as accurate and well informed and as "right" as you can, but don't let on that you are so.

People will like you much better if you let them have the pleasure of discovering these qualities in you. People always like to discover things, you know.

"Be sure you're right, then go ahead" is excellent advice from a moral standpoint, but for social conduct, "Be sure you're right, then keep it to yourself" is better.

For no matter how well you fulfill the rest of Kipling's "ifs," if you fail in that one, if you "look too good or talk too wise," you nullify the rest and do not reach the full measure of a man.

Heart and Home Problems

by MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Please advise me what to do. I haven't any mother. I want to do what is right, but I feel that I need an older and more experienced head to advise me.

I have been engaged for over a year to a man who is really a very good man. I have always liked him but never felt that I couldn't live without him, though with pleasure of living with him. We have always been good friends and he seems to be very fond of me.

But lately I have met another man toward whom I feel differently. He has told me he loves me and he, too, is a splendid young man in every way. And I know that I love him.

Now, must I keep my promise to that other man? If I had never met this one we could have been reasonably happy together, I think. But now I cannot bear the thought of living with anybody but the one I love. And love is very different from friendship.

Please tell me what you think it is my duty to do. Will I be an injustice to the man I am engaged to, to break my engagement, when he has relied on my word for over a year? A TROUBLED GIRL.

I think, my dear, that you really love the second man, and if that is so, you could not do a greater injustice to the first one than to marry him.

A woman must have a heart full of love for the man she marries—love that will overlook faults and weaknesses and that will last through sickness and sorrow and the troubles that come to all of us.

If a woman once knows that kind of love for any man, and he loves her in return, they should marry.

DINNER STORIES

Little Jack was struggling through a stew, a pan roast, a broil and a his home lessons and there were many signs of distress written on his young face.

"Mother," he said in a small voice, "what does her-c-dilly mean?"

Mother wasn't quite sure herself, but she wasn't going to say so. So she answered vaguely: "It's—or—it's something you get from your father or me."

Little Jack thought hard for a few moments. Suddenly a look of knowledge, born of past pain, crossed his face.

"Then is spanking hereditary, ma?" he asked sadly.

A Centralia man found it advisable to put on a ragged suit of clothes, in order to repair some machinery. After he had finished he went home to dinner. He met a tramp coming out of his front gate as he went in. The tramp mistook him for a knight of the road. He held up a warning hand. "Duck it—retreat," cautioned the tramp. "I've just tried her and she's a regular bearcat."

The sign in front of a Harlem restaurant attracted the eye of a farmer and he went in. He had a raw, a fry, he laid a quarter on the cashier's desk, only to be told that he was shy a dollar and a quarter. "No, by jagg," said the farmer. "A quarter's right. Doesn't you sign say, 'Oysters in every style for 25 cents'?"

Very frequently the winter high ways of the Yukon Valley are mere trails, traversed only by dog sledges. One of the bishops in Alaska, who was very fond of that mode of travel, encountered a miner coming out with his dog team and stopped to ask him what kind of a road he had come over. The miner responded with a stream of forebode and picturesque profanity, winding up with, "And what kind of trail did you have?" "Same as yours," replied the bishop feelingly.

DIET AND HEALTH HINTS

By DR. T. J. ALLEN Food Specialist

FERMENTATION FROM INSUFFICIENT MASTICATION.

"A piece of bread and a bite of meat, both good, reached the plate of an ordinary business man," says Dr. J. F. Johnston, in Health Culture. "Hurriedly thrust into nervous jaws, they were given three hasty chews and washed down with coffee. Less than one-tenth of the bread could be reached by the digestive fluids, so nine-tenths passed on fermenting. The meat began being dissolved as it should be, but came in contact with the fermenting bread and both passed on fermenting together, so that they caused fever and intense inflammation. The appendix was removed the next day." I have frequently emphasized the opinion that fresh white bread and meat together are the commonest cause of the fermentation which is the source of appendicitis. Many of the injurious effects of meat are due to bad combinations rather than to the meat itself. Meat will digest very well with little or no chewing, but the same treatment of fresh bread will result in indigestion; and the fermentation of bread and meat is more serious than that of either separately.

Mistrusted Santa Claus. As Christmas time drew near Bob expressed a wish for some specially desired article. His mother suggested that he write to Santa Claus about it. "Mother," said the child, after some hesitation, "I think everything of Santa, an' I know how good he is an' everthing, but, mother, he's so awful busy that he forgets, sometimes! Last year, you member, I asked him for a toy goat an' he sent me four dogs. I wish you'd look after this one thing yourself!"

A WOMAN'S OBSERVATIONS

cost of food. The boys and girls should be educated to recognize the economic value of birds. There would then be less destruction of the little feathered blessings, and more encouragement to them to spread their usefulness.

Farmers, who ought to know better, are counted among the greatest enemies of their bird friends. By burning over the fields during the nesting season they destroy hundreds of nests and young. Cutting down all brush, leaves no place for nests. Many, in a mistaken idea, strew poisoned foods about their fields. Cutting down our woods and forests, too, has discouraged bird life.

It's really an easy matter to attract birds about your home. A garden is one of the greatest attractions.

The fresh-turned earth, the flowers and vegetables—all will bring them fluttering to you. They'll eat the harmful insects and give you joy with their songs, amuse you with their antics and keep you interested with their family life.

A few little boxes on poles, or fastened to the side of the house, will be made into homes by these birds, and the chickadees and robins may even be persuaded to stay all winter if you will feed them regularly.

It goes without saying, however, that you must keep the English sparrow away, and keep the premises as free as possible from cats and too-frisk dogs. A dog, however, can be taught to leave the birds alone; a cat never.

HOUSEHOLD TALKS

by Henrietta D. Graue

Lamb is generally understood to be under twelve months old. It comes into season in March but is in its prime in June and July. The tender little animals need almost as much care as human babies, poor food, rough treatment and storms, all injure their flesh and color and fat.

Lamb should not be hung long before cooking, as the flavor deteriorates and the meat becomes dry. Like all young meat, it should be well cooked, yet it must be tender and moist; therefore have some fat on the piece or put some dripping in the baking pan if you use an ordinary method and have no self-basting pan. When cooking a fore-quarter, have the oven very hot when the meat goes in and lower the heat when it is well seared.

To make the sauce, lift out the joint and pour off the fat, add to the brown particles left in the pan a cup of more of boiling water and a quantity of minced mint leaves. Let this boil up nicely and season with salt and pepper. Strain and pour over the joint.

Fore-quarter of lamb is less expensive than hind quarter, but the meat is equally sweet and good; fifteen to eighteen minutes are allowed to each pound.

When using fore-quarter, have the bones well broken so it may be cut into squares or remove the shoulder bone.

Mint sauce with vinegar is the approved sauce for lamb. The proportion of sugar and mint used varies according to individual tastes; chop the mint very fine and sprinkle with powdered sugar to draw out the essential oil let stand an hour before adding the vinegar, which should not be too sharp. While it is true that mint sauce will keep indefinitely, it is finest when fresh, so only prepare the needed quantity each time.

Asparagus, or green peas or spring turnips are the proper vegetables to serve with lamb. A good way to do is to steam the turnips; make them into cups and fill them with creamed or buttered peas.

When boiling asparagus, wash and trim and tie in bunches and put it in a deep tall pan, upright, with enough water to cover it. This is the only way that admits of cooking it in a whole bunch.

Crown roasts of lamb—Have the butcher cut nine ribs from each side of the lamb; separate at the backbone

The Facts of Soap-Making

Some of you once used soft green soap in the old country. And nearly everybody knows by reputation the famous soft green soap which is a staple—sold like sugar and flour—in Northern Europe. For the first time you can now buy this same soap in America.

Old Country GREEN SOAP

is pure vegetable oils made into soap with pure electrolytic potash. Hard cake or so-called family laundry soap is usually made from second-grade tallow, packing-house grease and caustic soda lye, and "filled" with about 60 per cent resin and 7 per cent minerals. The minerals are very injurious to the clothes, usually leaving them hard and gray or yellow. It is almost impossible to rinse out the resin, especially from woollens.

We've preferred to use this space merely to give you a few inside facts. You will write your own recommendations of "Old Country." Get a 2 pound trial can today from your grocer. It pays up to 25 pounds at 10 cents the pound and less. Test it today.

HOT WEATHER HINTS FOR BABIES' CARE

Prominent Physician Makes Suggestions as to Proper Care of Small Children During Hot Weather.

Jamesville is at present suffering with the hot wave which hangs over the country, and while the torrid weather is keenly felt by the grown-ups, it is even more severe on the babies, and especial pains should be taken for their comfort and welfare. In order that they may be well and stand the trying time, mothers should be especially careful. A set of rules for the proper care of children at this time have been suggested by a prominent physician as follows:

Do not sleep with a baby. The heat of the body of an adult person causes the infant discomfort. This is very important.

Do not tickle or tease a baby.

Do not feed it anything but milk, up to the age of 16 months, and do not forget to give it plenty of water.

Do not give the baby milk which has been milked for more than twelve hours, unless it has been kept in an ice box.

Warm the milk to the temperature of breast milk before feeding.

Do not rock the baby.

Do not feed it every time it cries.

Do not let fond relatives pinch, poke or say "Boo" to it to make it take notice.

Do not let other children visit and kiss it.

Do not let flies get into its food.

Do not put on clothes that retard the motion of its arms or legs.

Do not give it sugar, or sugar and water, for the first year, as sugar produces fermentation in the stomach.

In case of pains in the stomach lay the child face downward on its mother's knees and gently rub its back until it is relieved.

Ice boxes can be made by those who cannot afford to buy them. An ordinary packing box may be used. First line the box with asbestos paper. Set a circle of tin inside this large enough to allow a tin pail to be placed within the circle and yet give room for ice between the two.

Fill the space between the tin and the walls of the box with sawdust and line the cover with many thicknesses of newspaper. This will serve the purpose of keeping milk cool.

Especially warn mothers to thoroughly wash all utensils used for the baby's food and then to boil them in water before they are again used.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by Dr. J. C. This machine is strongly, although lightly, constructed and will give the best service in all kinds of grain and fields. It is easy running, due to its generous equipment of ball and roller bearings and accurately constructed gears. The levers are placed close to the operator. The new elevator construction provides a simplified driving method, greater elevating capacity, floating elevators designed to handle large quantities of grain, and a new device for slackening the elevator canvases. The newly designed breast plate and compressor trip will greatly improve the effectiveness of the binding attachment. The reel drive has been improved and lastly there is that almost human mechanism—the Deering Knotter—never old but always new and leading all other knotting devices in efficiency. You will make no mistake when you put the Deering New Ideal Binder in your field.

The Three Guardsmen

ALEXANDRE DUMAS

D'Artagnan bowed to the duke and was retreating.

"Well, you are going away in that manner! But where and how?"

"I had forgotten that England was an island, and that you were the king of it."

"Go to the port, ask for the brig, and give this letter to the captain. He will convey you to a little port, where certainly you are not expected, and which is ordinarily only frequented by fishermen."

"What is the name of that port?"

"St. Valery. But listen: When you have arrived there you will go to a mean inn, without a name and without a sign, a mere fisherman's hut. You cannot be mistaken; there is but one."

"And then?"

"You will ask for the host and will repeat to him the word 'Forward!' That is the password. He will give you a ready saddled horse and will point out to you the road you are to take. You will find in this manner four relays on your route. If you will give at each of these relays your address in Paris the four horses will follow you thither. You already know two of them. They were those who rode on, and the others are not inferior to them. These horses are equipped for the field. However proud you may be, you will not refuse to accept one of them and to request your three companions to accept the others. That is in order to make war against us besides."

D'Artagnan made his way as quickly as possible to the port. Fifty vessels were waiting to set out in momentary expectation of the removal of the prohibition. When passing alongside of one of them D'Artagnan fancied he perceived on board of it the lady of Meung, the same whom the unknown gentleman had styled milady and who D'Artagnan had thought was so handsome; but, thanks to the tide of the river and a fair wind, his vessel passed so quickly that he had little more than a glimpse of her.

The next day, about 9 o'clock in the morning, he landed at St. Valery. D'Artagnan went instantly to the inn and pronounced to the host the word "Forward!" The host instantly led him to the stable, where a ready saddled horse awaited him.

"I want to know the route I am to follow," said D'Artagnan.

"Go from hence to Blangy and from Blangy to Neufchâtel. At Neufchâtel go to the hotel of the Herse d'Or, give the password to the host, and you will find, as you have done here, a horse ready saddled."

"Have I anything to pay?" demanded D'Artagnan.

"Everything is paid," replied the host, "and liberally. Begone, then, and may God conduct you safely."

"Amen!" cried the young man and set off at full gallop.

It was the same at Neufchâtel, at Ecussin and at Pontoise. At the last named place he changed his horse for the last time and at 9 o'clock galloped into the yard of M. de Treville's hotel. He had performed nearly sixty leagues in little more than twelve hours.

CHAPTER XVII.
The Ballet of La Meillanais.

ON the morrow nothing was talked of in Paris but the ball which the aldermen of the city were to give to the king and queen.

At midnight great cries and loud acclamations were heard in the city. It was the king, who was passing through the streets which led from the Louvre to the Hotel de Ville and which were all illuminated with colored lamps. Immediately the aldermen, clothed in their cloth robes and preceded by six sergeants, holding each a flambeau in his hand, went to attend upon the king, whom they met on the steps, where the provost of the merchants offered him the compliment of welcome. Everybody observed that the king looked dull and preoccupied.

A closet had been prepared for the king with a masquerade habit. The same had been done with respect to the queen.

Before entering his closet the king desired to be informed the moment the cardinal arrived.

Half an hour after the entrance of the king fresh acclamations were heard. These announced the arrival of the queen. She entered the great hall, and it was remarked that, like the king, she looked dull and, moreover, fatigued.

At the moment she entered the curtain of a small gallery, which to that time had been closed, was drawn, and the pale face of the cardinal appeared, he being dressed as a Spanish cavalier. His eyes were fixed upon those of the queen and a smile of terrible joy passed over his lips. The queen did not wear her diamond studs.

All at once the king appeared at one of the doors of the hall. The cardinal was speaking to him in a low voice, and the king was very pale.

The king made his way through the crowd without a mask and the ribbons of his doublet scarcely tied. He went straight to the queen and in an altered voice said:

"Why, madame, have you not thought proper to wear your diamond studs when you know it would have given me so much gratification?"

"Sire," replied the queen with a faltering voice, "because, in the midst of such a crowd as this I feared some accident might happen to them. I can send for them to the Louvre, where they are, and thus your majesty's wishes will be complied with."

"Do so, madame—do so, and that at the quickest; for within an hour the ballet will commence."

The queen bent in token of submission and followed the ladies who were to conduct her to her closet. On his part the king returned to his.

The king came out first from his closet. He was in a hunting costume of the most elegant description.

The cardinal drew near to the king and placed in his hand a small casket. The king opened it and found in it two diamonds.

"What does this mean?" demanded he of the cardinal.

"Nothing," replied the latter; "only, if the queen has the studs, of which I very much doubt, count them, sire, and if you only find ten, ask her majesty who can have stolen from her the two studs that are here."

The king looked at the cardinal as if to interrogate him, but he had not time to address any question to him. A cry of admiration burst from every mouth. The queen was, without doubt, the most beautiful woman in France. It is true that the habit of a huntress became her admirably. She wore a beaver hat with blue feathers, a surtout of gray-pearl velvet, fastened with diamond clasps, and a skirt of blue satin, embroidered with silver. On her left shoulder sparkled the diamond studs upon a bow of the same color as the plumes and the skirt.

The king trembled with joy, and the cardinal with vexation. Nevertheless, distant as they were from the queen, they could not count the studs. The queen had them. The only question was, had she ten or twelve?

At that moment the violins sounded the signal for the ballet. The king advanced toward Madame la Presidente of the ball, with whom he was to dance, and his highness Monsieur the Count of Soissons, a relative of the king, with the queen. They took their places, and the ballet began.

The king figured opposite the queen, and every time that he passed by her he devoured with his eyes those studs, of which he could not ascertain the number. A cold sweat covered the brow of the cardinal.

The ballet lasted an hour. It ended amid the applause of the whole assemblage, and every one reconducted his lady to her place. But the king took advantage of the privilege he had of leaving his lady to advance eagerly toward the queen.

"I thank you, madame," said he, "for the deference you have shown to my wishes, but I think you want two of the studs, and I bring them back to you."

"How, sire?" cried the young queen, affecting surprise. "You are giving me then two more. But then I shall have fourteen."

In fact, the king counted them, and the twelve studs were all on her majesty's shoulder.

The king called the cardinal to him. "What does this mean, M. the Cardinal?" asked the king in a severe tone.

"This means, sire," replied the cardinal, "that I was desirous of presenting her majesty with these two studs and that, not daring to offer them myself, I adopted this means of inducing her to accept them."

"And I am the more grateful to your eminence," replied Anne of Austria.

with a smile that proved she was not the dupe of this ingenious piece of gallantry, "from being certain these two studs have cost you as dearly as all the others cost his majesty."

Then after bowing to the king and the cardinal the queen resumed her way to the chamber in which she had dressed and where she was to take off her ball costume.

D'Artagnan, to whom Anne of Austria owed the extraordinary triumph she had obtained over the cardinal, was lost in the crowd gathered at one of the doors. He looked on at this scene, comprehensible only to four persons, the king, the queen, his eminence and himself.

The queen had just regained her chamber, and D'Artagnan was about to retire when he felt his shoulder lightly touched. He turned round and saw a young woman who made him a sign to follow her. The face of this young woman was covered with a black velvet mask, but he recognized Mme. Bonacieux.

On the evening before they had scarcely seen each other for a moment at the apartment of the Swiss German, whither D'Artagnan had sent for her. The haste which the young woman was in to convey to her mistress the excellent news of the happy return of her messenger prevented the two from exchanging more than a few words. D'Artagnan therefore followed Mme. Bonacieux, moved by a double sentiment, love and curiosity.

She opened the door of a closet, which was entirely dark, and led D'Artagnan into it. There she made a sign of silence, and, opening a second door concealed by a tapestry and which opening spread at once a brilliant light, she disappeared.

D'Artagnan remained for a moment motionless, asking himself where he could be, but soon a ray of light which penetrated through the chamber, together with the warm and perfumed air which reached him from the same aperture, the conversation of two or three ladies in a language at once respectful and elegant and the word "majesty" two or three times repeated indicated clearly that he was in a closet attached to the queen's chamber.

The queen appeared to be cheerful and happy, which seemed to astonish the persons who surrounded her and who were accustomed to see her almost always sad and full of care. D'Artagnan heard her approach and withdrew from the partially open door.

and twice or three times he even saw the shadow of a person intercept the light.

At length a hand and an arm, surpassingly beautiful in their form and whiteness, glided through the tapestry. D'Artagnan at once comprehended that this was his recompense. He cast himself on his knees, seized the hand and touched it respectfully with his lips. Then the hand was withdrawn, leaving in his an object which he perceived to be a ring. The door immediately closed, and D'Artagnan found himself again in complete darkness.

D'Artagnan waited. After the reward of his devotion that of his love was to come. The sound of voices diminished by degrees in the adjoining chamber. The company was then heard departing, then the door of D'Artagnan's closet was opened, and

Mme. Bonacieux entered quickly. "You at last?" cried D'Artagnan. "Silence!" said the young woman, placing her hand upon his lips. "Silence, and begone the same way you came!"

"But where and when shall I see you again?" cried D'Artagnan. "A note which you will find at home will tell you. Begone, begone!"

D'Artagnan ran home immediately. Planchet, who had returned from London, opened the door to him.

"Has any one brought a letter for me?" asked D'Artagnan eagerly.

"No one has brought a letter, monsieur," replied Planchet, "but there is one come of itself. When I came in, although I had the key of your apartment in my pocket, and that key had never been out of my possession, I found a letter upon the green table cover in your bedchamber. I left it where I found it, monsieur. Beware, monsieur, there is certainly some magic in it."

While Planchet was saying this the young man had darted into his chamber and seized and opened the letter. It was from Mme. Bonacieux and was conceived in these terms:

There are many thanks to be offered to you and to be transmitted to you. Be this evening about 10 o'clock at St. Cloud, in front of the pavilion built at the corner of the hotel of M. d'Estrees. C. B.

It was the first billet he had received. It was the first rendezvous that had ever been granted him. His heart, swelled by the intoxication of joy, felt ready to dissolve.

At 7 o'clock in the morning he arose and called his servant.

"Planchet," said he, "I am going out for all day perhaps. You are therefore your own master till 7 o'clock in the evening, but at 7 o'clock you must hold yourself in readiness with two horses. By this evening there will be four in the guard stables."

Nodding to Planchet, D'Artagnan went out.

Forty Years Ago

Janesville Daily Gazette, July 9, 1872.—Street Warfare: A disturbance in which a white hatted traveling man went to the pavement under a blow from one of our muscular citizens, created a little excitement on Main street last evening. No. 7 cocktails and Graham juleps, indiscreetly mixed caused the demonstration.

A Wholesome Lesson: Shank, of the Emerald Grove hotel, is the most inoffensive man in the county, being constitutionally opposed to personal altercations. But he did get aroused last Sunday when a party of Janesville ruffians took dinner at his house, refused to pay for it and then attempted to whip him. One of the boys came out of the discussion with a pair of black eyes and sundry bruises which materially interfere with his business pursuits.

Brief Items: Twenty thousand pounds of wool were received at Bump & Gray's warehouse yesterday.

The marble tablets bearing the names of Beloit college students who fell in the war have been placed in the new memorial hall, in that city.

Daniel Dobell, while at work in a well in the town of Bradford last week was struck in the side by a stone weighing twelve pounds, which fell sixteen feet. He was rendered senseless by the blow and was confined to his bed for several days.

If the men who save the nation in the old accustomed way, piling up, without vacation, heaps of language day by day, would forsake the verbal byways, dump their eloquence wares, and do stunts upon the highways, we'd have splendid thoroughfares! Better roads in all directions—that is what this country needs, but we do not make connections with the sane and useful deeds; half the energy expended in conventions and the like would see shameful highways ended if exhausted on the pike.
